

TRAVELERS AID INTERNATIONAL

A large commercial airplane is shown from a low angle, flying towards the viewer against a dramatic sunset sky. The sun is a bright, glowing orb on the left, casting a warm orange and yellow light across the clouds. The airplane is dark, with its engines and wings clearly visible. Below the airplane, a cityscape is visible, with various buildings and structures. The overall scene conveys a sense of travel and global connectivity.

Caroline Guilford from Travelers Aid International will be joining us to discuss their impactful nonprofit program. Travelers Aid International supports passengers who are in distress as they navigate airports and travel to their destinations. The organization is currently seeking to expand its volunteer base and is looking for compassionate individuals to assist travelers on a day-to-day basis. Caroline will share insights into the program, the vital role volunteers play, and how you can get involved in making a meaningful difference for those in need while traveling.
